LehrPuls

FOR QUALITY MANAGEMENT AND PROGRAM DIRECTORS

Teaching quality from evidence: per topic, per course, per semester — without exposing individuals.

End-of-semester evaluation tells you how it was received. LehrPuls shows during the semester what was received — per topic and per question, aggregated across courses and years. The data arises in the lecture hall as a by-product and stays with the instructor; the institution gets metrics, not surveillance.

Quality development from data

Topic maturity, planned vs. actual time, course comparison, the same question tracked across semesters.

Protection of individuals

Metrics only from a minimum base of ten answers; instructors decide what they pass on.

What program directors see

- Topic maturity: which topics stick and which do not — across all courses of a program
- Question quality: difficulty and discrimination per question make exam preparation measurable
- Time balance: planned versus actual time per topic and session
- Trend: the same question cohort after cohort — the effect of curriculum changes

Rollout without a project office

- Pilot: one instructor, one semester, one playlist — then the first report is on the table
- IT approval: IT guide and privacy dossier with DPIA template are ready
- Seat packages: personal seats, purchase on invoice, the license travels with the person
- Baton: question banks become the common property of the program

Example from the pilot: 208 questions, 4,374 answers, five sessions — and a clear finding: 47 of 104 evaluable questions were answered correctly by more than 90 percent. Questions that are too easy test nothing; the instructor revised the question set for the next semester accordingly.

A pilot semester costs you one license

Start with one instructor and one seat (Education €79 one-time). At the end of the semester you see the first topic report — and then decide on the seat package.
